

St. Philip E. M. Skinner Organ, (Op. 787)

The St. Philip organ, built by the E. M. Skinner Co. of Boston, Massachusetts (Op. 787), constitutes a major example of the legacy of Skinner instruments in Battle Creek. Funded in part by W. K. Kellogg, the 3-manual, medium-sized instrument represents some of the early 20th century's finest skill of the organ builder's craft. The Skinner name is highly respected by both organists and organ builders, and is synonymous with the refined, orchestra examples of organs built in the early decades of the 20th century. The sounds of Op. 787 are enhanced by the live, generous acoustics of St. Philip.
